

Collin Holloway has lived all across the United States. He was born in Flint, Michigan and attended Full Sail University in Florida. He's still new to politics but was introduced to it in High School when he took a AP U.S. politics elective which set him on the path of being a public servant. He attended the Boy's State mock government camp in Michigan during 2016 and volunteered for the Bernie Sanders presidential campaign as well as canvassing to try and get marijuana legalization on the Florida state ballot during 2020. Having settled down in Berkeley County for three years now, Collin wants to serve the amazing people who live South Carolina.
